The Price of Wool.

MARSHALL—During the past week one dealer purchased 200,000 pounds at an average price of 37¢ another 7,000 at 34¢ average. The only large lot of fine wool sold here was that of L. Silliman of Albion, it being over 2,500 pounds and every fleece a fine grade Shropshire, for which 2½ was paid.

MR. PLEASANT—The home dealers bought most of the wool here, prices ranging from 18 to 28¢.

PORTLAND—About 35,000 pounds of wool have been purchased here, including last week's sales, prices ranging from 25 to 30¢.

ARMADA—The wool sales here thus far aggregate about 35,000 pounds, prices ranging from 25 to 28¢.

ROCKAWAY—Wool has been very active during the past week, closing yesterday at 25 to 27 and 28¢ for washed, and for unwashed 25 to 18¢; 50,000 pounds have been marketed the past week.

HIDDESBY—Farmers seem anxious to sell their wool, prices ranging from 25 to 28¢. One firm has bought 90,000 pounds so far and have quit buying at some points an account of the price going beyond the figure they considered safe to buy at.

YPSILANTI—As high as 30 cents has been paid for some extra fine fleeces while the lowest price paid has been 20 cents. All the wool was washed.

HOWLAND—During the past week wool has sold at 25 to 28¢ for fine. Shearing is only just finished and with several buyers in the field the prospects are good for a lively market.

PONTIAC—The market here is more active than last year, with prices a little higher. BATTLE CREEK—Wool has sold during the past week at prices ranging from 20¢ for poor qualities to 28¢ for extra. The market will extend through the week, but the indications are that not more than 20¢ will be offered.

PAW PAW—Wool has sold during the past week at prices ranging from 25 to 30 cents but buyers limited the price Saturday to 28¢.

FIRST—The wool market in this country opened with a big rush last week, and by some authorities it is thought that most of the clip was in the dealers' hands. Others maintain that only about half is in. The prices have run all the way from 24 to 33 cents, but the bulk of the clip has brought from 28 to 30 cents. The buyers here look for a decline this week, but if the crop is nearly all in that is hardly likely to be the case.

BESTON—A large amount of wool was marketed the past week and on Friday there was a glut, which caused the price to drop to about 26¢.

CLINTON—Prices have been on the downward trend for several days, and the best clips bring scarcely 30¢.

OSHTON—The wool clip in this vicinity has nearly all been marketed, the season having been shortened by the extreme warm weather during the past ten days. In all buyers here have purchased about 50,000 pounds at an average price of 27¢ per pound. This varies very little, only a fraction of a cent, from average price of last year.

SOUTH HAVEN—Buyers have taken in about 15,000 pounds of wool, paying on an average about 21¢ for unwashed and 26½¢ for washed.

GRAND RAPIDS—The wool business picked up a little the past week but not to any remarkable extent. The receipts were in the neighborhood of 20,000 pounds. The prices have ranged from 20 to 28¢ for unwashed and toward the latter part of the week showed signs of weakening and it was an exceptionally good fleece that brought higher than 28¢. This week is expected to close the wool business for the season.

A Great Roast.

A correspondent of the Detroit Free Press writing from Adrian tells: "An Ogen farmer has just met a heavy loss from the extremely hot weather. Mr. N. V. Heide, who is a large breeder of hogs, had 24 fine fat porkers which were ready for market, and which he had feeding in a field of clover, from which they were accustomed to go to a field near by for water at a trough passing from the pasture through a gate. One day about noon the herd made for their accustomed water site, but the gate had in some way been closed. The beasts tried to get through, and finally, as they crowded together, they laid down exhausted. In the afternoon Mr. Hill took a look about the pens and discovered the hogs at the gate, and every one dead but one. The sun had beaten down upon the poor beasts with such intense fierceness as to crack open the skin, and the fat was literally fried out of them. It was the opinion of Mr. Heide that not over two or three hours had elapsed after the hogs started for the water. He puts down $150 loss to his farm business and hereafter no live hog will roast to death on his farm."

A Hurricane.

PAW PAW, June 30.—Saturday night the wind blew a hurricane in the vicinity of Three-Mile Lake, and the roof was lifted from the hay barn of Thomas Graham, carried over 30 rods and landed in a field of beans. The barn boards were split into splintering wood. Large trees were broken off several feet from the ground, and others were torn out by the roots, leaving holes large enough to drive a team into. It took a strip about four rods wide, and fences were laid flat.

The Squaw's Vengeance.

ABANDONED, N. D., June 28.—Rain-in-the-Face, the noted Sioux chief, ranking next to Sitting Bull in renown, and made prominent through the Custer massacre, is lying at Standing Rock agency N. D., dangerously wounded, and unless a change for the better soon takes place, he must die. There is a sensational story in connection with the case. The chief was stabbed in the chest several days ago by a squaw, a handsome young woman whom he had neglected for another young woman. After a desperate quarrel between Rain-in-the-Face and his squaw, during which she drew a knife, the chiefs removed to another lodge. That night while he lay asleep his wife entered and plunged a long knife into his side and chest, making terrible wounds. She then gave herself up, saying she was sorry she had not killed him. Should he die, she will be tried for murder. She is now under strong guard as violence is feared.

Burning Up.

From telegraphic reports received at Denver, it would seem that a greater portion of the Sangre de Cristo range in Colorado and New Mexico is in flames. A special Espanola, N. M., says the valley is obscured by smoke from the burning mountains east of Espanola. The fire extends over 30 miles up and down the Santa Fe range and makes a beautiful and weird appearance. The fires have been burning for several days now, and as no attempt has been made to extinguish the loss will be great. Palmer Lake, Col., says the forest fire which has been burning in the Cook Creek district the past few days is still out of reach. It took a south-west course up what is known as Gerds Canon, burning at a furious rate, and has at present destroyed 1,000 acres of young timber.

FACING DEATH.

Down Into a Mine Amid Fire and Smoke.

DENVER, Pa., June 27.—The flames which have been burning in Hill Farm mine burst from the mouth of the pit at 8:30 o'clock tonight and leaped 30 feet in the air. All efforts to extinguish the flames have proven fruitless, and the buildings in the vicinity were torn down to prevent the fire spreading. A hurried consultation followed between the inspectors and District Master Workman Watchorn as to the advisability of abandoning the search for the imprisoned men. It was the belief of the inspectors that it was absolutely dangerous to proceed further, but they decided to finish the work themselves. A hole has been drilled into the Hill Farm mine at 11 o'clock the inspectors started on their perilous search. They have taken their lives in their own hands, and may never see daylight again. It is feared the mine is on fire all through, or else filled with smoke. In either case the danger is very great. It is of a character, too, that tries to the very utmost the courage of any man. In the dark with tons of loose earth above them, a false step or any kind of a move may bring death in an instant.

Up in a Balloon.

CLEVELAND, June 28.—"Estelle Le Roy," a Cleveland girl whose real name is Hull, attempted to make her first balloon ascension and parachute jump at Beyer's park last evening. The balloon was inflated with hot air, and an employee, named Ed. French, was sent inside to keep it from igniting from sparks from the fire. He was forgotten and when the balloon was sufficiently inflated it was cut loose and shot up into the air. French was not prepared for ascension and he began to scramble out. One of his feet caught in the ropes and he hung head downward. After a vigorous struggle he succeeded in extricating himself when the balloon was about 30 feet from the earth, and after turning two somersaults in the air he alighted on the ground on his face and was severely injured. The fall of French loosened the parachute from the balloon and at the height of 100 feet it suddenly broke loose. The parachute does not open until it has traversed considerable distance and the woman descended with a rush. There was a loud cry of terror and a general stampede. Fortunately the aeronaut fell into the branches of a large tree and was rescued without sustaining any injury. She was considerably frightened, but declared her intention of trying the feat again.

WASHINGTON.

SAND BEACH HARBOR OF REFUGE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Blair's Educational Bill is Revived by Mr. O'Donnell.

General Notes on Affairs at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, June 30.

The people of Sand Beach, and the owners of vessels who are interested in the improvement of the harbor of refuge there, are very much displeased at the action of the senate committee in so lowering their appropriation as to make it of little or no service to them. Several of them have written to the senators, Representative Whiting and Representative Stephenson, who are members of the house committee on rivers and harbors, secured the insertion of the appropriation in the house bill, saying that if they had imagined the senate was antagonistic to this most important improvement they could have flooded the body with petitions from all along the chain of great lakes in favor of Sand Beach.

James O'Donnell has amazed the house and astonished the country by resurrecting the Blair educational bill. When the bill was defeated in the senate several months ago it was regarded as dead, not only for this season but for ever. It was not discussed in any way in the house and even escaped mention in the house committee on education, of which O'Donnell is chairman. There was a well defined notion that O'Donnell was personally averse to the bill and that in any event it was dead enough to need a monument. The bill, however, which was introduced by the only Negro member of the house, Mr. Cheatham, has, to the surprise of everybody, emerged from O'Donnell's committee with a favorable report. Chairman O'Donnell called a meeting of his committee after dusk to take up the consideration of the bill. The Democrats of the committee did not attend the meeting. Several republican members were present and they all voted to report the bill.

The debate in the house on the Federal elections bill was opened Thursday by Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts. He said he did not think that a more serious subject had ever come before the house. It demanded serious and deliberate treatment. It was not enough that elections were fair, he said. They must be known to be fair. It had been charged that the bill was sectional. The acts which it was proposed to extend had been called into existence by the gigantic frauds in the city of New York prior to 1870 and 1871. Mr. Lodge gave a description of the state of affairs at that time in New York city, citing among other things the tenth district of the sixth ward, where, he said, the democratic vote (after throwing out all the other votes) was 884, or 14 more than the total number of every man, woman and child resident in the district. In his own state there had been complaint of the registration system, and accusations had been made that the lists were not right. If they were not, the bill would remedy the wrong thing. He said he did not believe that any body honest in intention would be afraid to have the truth and the whole truth known. As to the southern states, it was apparent that many people believed that great frauds were there committed. If the belief that such a thing as a fair election in the south was unknown, then it was a high time the United States should put a stop to the evil if it had to exercise every power the constitution put into its hands. Mr. Lodge presented a number of statistics to show the insufficiency of representation in the south. He said that in 41 election districts in the south the members were elected by an average of less than 15,000 votes.
